

TEUTON POLICE WORRY BRITISH

Force Patrolling Ruhr Basin Considered Regular Army in Disguise.

WEAR WAR MEDALS

Allies Keep Eyes on Corps Because of Its Militaristic Tinge.

(Washington Herald-Public Ledger Service—Special Cable Dispatch.)
By HERBERT BAILEY.

Munster, Westphalia, April 24.—There are still 16,000 Reichswehr in the neutral zone of the Ruhr area, according to the allied control commissioner here, but the number is being slowly reduced. General von Watter lives in a palace here, but it is no longer his troops that represent the chief military strength of Germany in the west, but the Sicherheitspolizei, or in other words, the security police.

Police Wear War Medals.
Officers of the police force, bedecked with iron crosses and other war decorations, return the smart salutes of their men in the most commendable military fashion.

The men, apparently, are very intent on their duties, and the majority of them wear the iron cross. They carry rifles across their shoulders, and this police force is the only one in the world that has artillery, flame throwers and other war forces at its command.

Regular Army in Disguise.
The security police are the regular army in disguise. They are the elite corps reserved for the best only, and are certainly a better fighting force than the youthful, inexperienced Reichswehr.

The German government is either powerless or disinclined to remove this menace to themselves, but the allies most certainly watch this camouflaged police force. The allied command here, which is predominantly British, is working hard to enforce the disarmament of Germany.

Big Shoe Factory Uses Mail for Deliveries

Middleboro, Mass., April 27.—Owing to the railroad strikes and troubles generally, a big shoe company here has been sending its shipments by mail. Whole carloads have been shipped in this way the past few weeks.

They have shipped through the postoffice in one day 900 cases of shoes on which the postage was about $3,600.

Cow Justifies Laurels.

Belvidere, Ill., April 24.—Oleas Girl, a 13-year-old cow and champion of Illinois, gave 24.6 pounds of milk producing 22.82 pounds of butter, all within a period of seven days.

Railroad Strike Is Lark For Student Volunteers

The private car of President James of the Lackawanna Railroad was loaded with students of the Stevens Institute of Technology, who were taken to Scranton, Pa., as strikebreakers. Large figure—a member of the class in electrical engineering of the University of Pennsylvania taking the place of a striker in an electrical power house of the Pennsylvania system.

Zionists Urge English Mandate in Holy Land

By ORTON TEWSON.

London, April 24.—I am able to state that Lloyd George, at San Remo, is being deluged with telegrams from every Zionist organization in the world, pointing out the anxiety caused by the present protracted delay over the future of the Holy Land and urging the Supreme Council to confer on Britain the mandate provided by the league of nations for Palestine.

The British press is devoting much attention to the question of a Jewish national home there. (Copyright, 1920, Cross-Atlantic Newspaper Service, Inc.)

Union Graft Charge Fails.

Peoria, Ill., April 24.—By a vote of nearly four to one Illinois miners voted against sustaining the charges of graft lodged against President Frank L. Farrington by Frank Heffley, defeated candidate for the presidency.

Teacher Gets Record Pay.

Lincoln, Ill., April 24.—Miss Mary Murphy is drawing what is believed to be the highest salary paid a country school teacher in Illinois, $175 a month.

CANADIAN AIRMEN IMPRESS INVENTOR

By HUGH DRYDEN.

London, April 24.—Handley Page, aircraft builder and inventor of the machine of that name, said today that he was greatly impressed during his recent visit to America with the possibilities of future civil flying in Canada. He said that much more official encouragement was given aerial development there than in the United States.

"Canada is the natural link in the air route between Britain and Asia," he explained. "Canada is only alleged to be dry, while the United States is actually so. Still there are great liquid possibilities in the way of aerial transportation." Page concluded.

The bulk of the surplus war airplanes and a considerable amount of motors and accessories have been sold to a company controlled chiefly by Godfrey Isaacs and Handley Page for $4,000,000. (Copyright, 1920, Cross-Atlantic Newspaper Service, Inc.)

Co-operates on Housing Plan.

Chicago, April 24.—Business men stand ready to furnish $20,000,000 with which to build houses. This will probably supply 6,000 tenants with homes. Houses will cost up to $6,000, and the borrower will pay the loan at the rate of $10 per month per $1,000.

EXCHANGERATE FRICTION CAUSE

Banker Says Pound Sterling Slump Brings International Irritation.

ACUTE DURING 1920

Antagonism Between U. S. And England Will Subside, He Holds.

By HUGH DRYDEN.

London, April 24.—I am able to present the opinions of two leading bankers, one an American and the other a Britisher, on the present rate of exchange between the two countries. They attempt to explain the conditions governing the international exchange rate.

Sir John Ferguson, president of Lloyds' Bank, the largest institution of its kind in the world, said:

"Bankers and financial experts themselves are not agreed regarding the causes which produce the rate of exchange."

Rate Soon Equalized.

"The rate itself is determined simply by the question of at what rate the bankers will exchange. It is possible that one bank may give a different rate than others but, as all banks are in close touch, the rate soon becomes equalized."

"It would be possible for the government to boost up the rate artificially, but only at a great loss because to a vast extent trade between Britain and the United States would stop."

Suggests Oil Buying.

"If America bought England's oil supply in Mesopotamia that would go far to restore the balance of trade. Another means would be for the United States to employ British shipping. The pound sterling would be helped if the United States bought British securities. American business men might open factories here."

James E. Dunning, an American banker and head of the British and Foreign Mercantile Bank, said:

"A distinguished British publicist who recently visited the United States said that if the sterling exchange went to $3.50 and stayed there ten years, it would be the greatest blessing that could happen to England."

Predicts Irritating Situation.

"His remark is full of truth. There is a widespread though inaccurate opinion that the depreciated pound is a sign of financial danger to Britain."

"There is bound to be a great deal of talk which will lead to widespread international irritation. We will have to reckon with growing irritation between Britain and the United States which will increase throughout 1920, reach its highest point at about the end of the year. After which, if left to itself, it should begin to subside."

BRITISH SHIPBUILDERS BOOST PRICE PER TON

By HUGH DRYDEN.

London, April 24.—American shipbuilders, it is believed here, are certain to benefit by the latest development in British shipyards, where the construction price of vessels has suddenly increased from $140 to $180 a ton. This is $60 higher than the price prevailing in American yards and British ship owners have announced their intention of placing their orders in America in the future.

The advance is attributed to the government's mishandling of transport arrangements and the decrease in output, due to new labor conditions.

Less restriction on importation of steel from Germany and America is being asked for. "American yards are bound to reap the benefit of the new situation. However, I predict a fall in freight and passenger rates in the near future," Owen Phillips, chief representative of shipping interests in Parliament, told me today. Presidency Is Sought By John Speckled Crow

St. Paul, Minn., April 24.—John Speckled Crow, Shoonone Indian, announced his candidacy for President while passing through here. His platform centers in a blanket, safety pin and eagle feather for Congressmen, who should set the pace for the rest in order to put the clothing profiteers on the blink. As to woman's suffrage, Crow opined that those were happy times, when "our aquas did the work and we defended them." He had a lot more ideas about "paleface wives who have forgotten to honor and obey their masters," but Mrs. Crow, at this juncture, elbowed her way through the crowd on the corner and, seizing the noble redman by the hair, dragged him toward the depot.

Bay State Moves Up Time To Save Daylight Today

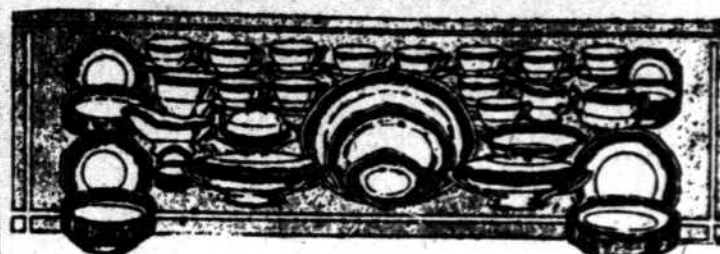

Boston, April 24.—The daylight saving bill will go into effect in Massachusetts tomorrow and it looks very much as if its enforcement would cause all sorts of complications, especially on the railroads, for Massachusetts is the only one of the New England States that has definitely decided to take the step. Maine will not have it. Rhode Island is "agin it." Connecticut and Vermont have come to no decision, and New Hampshire hasn't even thought about it. However, the clocks of Massachusetts will be moved forward one hour in the morning.
